

January 6, 2021 Education Colloquium with Dr. Bill Robinson
Transcript of Zoom Chat

13:04:36 Dan Cedarbaum:

The documents shared in advance of this program can be found here:

<https://kaplancenter.org/education-colloquium-documents-1-26-21/>

13:14:00 Dan Cedarbaum:

Here is the link for the [January 26th] Sandy Sasso Program [about Judith Kaplan Eisenstein]:

https://us02web.zoom.us/meeting/register/tZYqdemrrDljHtdUY_gRfgOCcsNOFI8nV6Vc

13:41:39 Jane Susswein:

My daughter might have been there that summer!

13:43:47 Rabbi James Greene (He/Him/His):

Along those lines, the storytelling you reference, the Bible and how the stories develop a sense of situated self. I am curious how the new stories we tell (as they become core stories in the community) fit into the evolving sense of situated self. This is especially true in communities like Jewish Camp.

13:55:52 Cyd Weissman, she/her:

So sorry I have to leave, look forward to watching the video for the rest. Thank you so much

13:57:37 Susan Penn:

Unfortunately, I need to step into another meeting. Thank you for this.

13:58:08 Barbara Penzner she/her:

I really appreciated the article as a reminder of the philosophical background to 21st century Jewish education and I'm grateful that Hillary Engler, our Ed director, is on as well. Sorry I have to leave to go to another appointment. Great to see old friends!

14:12:02 Jeffrey Schein:

Jonathan Krasner...the Benderly Boys

14:14:00 Sid Schwarz:

To Gail's point, the very beauty of Israel is to see a living laboratory of Jewish peoplehood. Yet its shortcoming is that in a State that is essentially an ethno-national entity, it is too easy to leave values out of the mix.

14:15:21 Jeffrey Schein:

Regarding Hillary's comment: the challenge of intersectionality is quite real.

14:22:34 Rob Weinberg:

Medium is the message - it's an inductive process of practicing the virtue and then labeling what you've done as virtue or value.

14:25:45 Rob Weinberg:

Thank you all for including me in this conversation. I appreciate the invitation.

14:33:36 Gail Shuster-Bouskila:

Fascinating, thank you Bill and all!

14:33:47 Sid Schwarz:

Thanks all.

14:34:03 Ariann Weitzman:

Thanks, all!